Nanking. Oct. 15, 1911,

My dear Mamie. ☺

feel so cross at you all for never writing that you just going to let you all know it. I would just even write a postal. But I'm afraid you may see reports and think the failure of my study and voluminous correspondence is due to lack of ability to winter. Not so.

We are all well and the most beautiful weather. The little school increases until now fourteen children are enrolled. The S & T's. We are just standing on tiptoe listening to hear the Rebels come to take the city. Unchang and other cities have been taken and every one seems to think that it is a wide spread movement to overthrow the Manchu government. They promise protection to all foreigners. Nanking has not many Manchu officials but the biggest government mint is located here and I should think it might be worth coming after. We are uneasy but not awfully - eat and sleep and sew and gabble as usual - only mopes of the last of course -
Lovingly mother
